When Karan Johar's memoirs, The Unsuitable Boy, released recently, he let the world know of his desire to become a father.

“I don't know what I'm going to do about it but I feel like I would like to be a parent. I don't know how it's going to happen but I do feel the need because I have plenty of love to offer and I'd like to take it forward,” he said.

Now, thanks to the wonders of surrogacy, Johar has become a father to twins, a baby girl and boy. He has named them Yash and Roohi Johar, after his father Yash Johar, while Roohi is an anagram of his mother Hiroo's name.

According to news reports, Yash and Roohi Johar's names were registered on Friday, at the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC). Reports also tell us that the twins were born last month, in Masrani Hospital, which is the same hospital where Shah Rukh Khan's youngest son AbRam was born. The twins were born on February 7, and were delivered by Dr. Makrand Masrani.

— Karan Johar (@karanjohar) March 5, 2017

"I am ecstatic to share with you all the two most wonderful additions to my life, my children and lifelines; Roohi and Yash. I feel enormously blessed to be a parent to these pieces of my heart who were welcomed into this world with the help of the marvels of medical science.

This was an emotional yet well thought out decision which I have taken after considering all the responsibilities and duties that come with being a parent. In order to arrive at this decision, I have prepared myself mentally, physically, emotionally and logistically to ensure that my children get all the unconditional love, care and attention from me and mine. I have submitted to the fact that my children are my world and priority. My work, travels and social commitments would have to take a back seat and I am prepared for that. By the grace of God, I have the most caring and supportive mother who will be an integral part in the up-bringing of her grandchildren and of course, friends who are family.

I am eternally grateful to the surrogate who has fulfilled my lifelong dream and provided a warm, loving and nurturing environment to my children before bringing them into this world. She will always remain in my prayers.
